Patricia's heart is soaked in bitterness and pain. She does not want to play another game, but Destiny lured her to gamble for one last time. She played with extreme caution, but she lost again. Destiny cheated her once more and left her totally shattered. She refused defeat and instead of crying, she hungered for revenge. Wael offered to heal her broken heart, but his warmth is chilling her and his light is blinding her. Will she accept Wael's offer to comfort her pain? Is Wael's love strong enough to smooth the edges of Patricia's jagged past? Patricia is chilling in the dark. Can Wael thaw her frozen cold heart and bring it back to life again? It is definitely nothing less than love. For Wael, it is love strong enough to cross the boundaries of tradition and culture in anticipation of forever. For Patricia, it is love great enough to look beyond forever to set Wael free.
